

Abstract

5 An injector device has a plunger with a medical needle essentially non-detachably secured thereto, preferably a solid needle incapable of delivering a fluid, and is adapted for the quick and easy transcutaneous placement through the skin of a patient of the cannula of a subcutaneous infusion set, the insertion needle extending through the infusion set and protruding from the end of the cannula.

10

T0927 " 12601 0995237